The SVEN HEDIN Book

Central Asia and Tibet

With 8 illustrations in color, 16 drawings by distinguished artists, 400 photographs and 4 maps. In two volumes, $10.50 net.

LAST winter the newspapers of the world described Dr. Hedin's return from his three years in Central Asia and made announcement of his extraordinary experiences and discoveries. Since, he has received marked recognition from every geographical society of standing in Europe, including the unanimous award of the Victoria Medal of the Royal Geographical Society of London. The Swedish Government is making his atlas at its own expense.

This book is the first adequate description of his remarkable expedition and its accomplishments, an expedition so rich in adventure, as well as solid achievement, that he has been called, by the London press, "the modern knight-errant of science."

SOME OF HIS EXPERIENCES

His navigation of 1500 miles in a ferry-boat; his discoveries of the remains of cities dating from the third Century A.D., with translations of Chinese MSS. there unearthed; his crossing of the mountains of Tibet with the largest and strongest caravan which has ever traversed that country; his extraordinary journey in disguise towards Lhasa; his discovery by Tibetan spies warned of his intention to enter Lhasa; his captivity and escort by 500 Tibetans; his conflicts with them, and his voyage in an English folding-boat over twelve Tibetan lakes.

Christy Book for 1903

THE COURTSHIP OF MILES STANDISH

By HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW, with Fifty Full-Page Illustrations by HOWARD CHANDLER CHRISTY. Large 8vo, bound in Puritan gray cloth, in a box, price, $3.00.

A CHRISTY PRISCILLA AND JOHN ALDEN.
From the new Christy Book. Copyright, 1903, The Bobbs-Merrill Co.

A BOOK FOR LOVERS

No pains have been spared to make the Howard Chandler Christy Edition of "The Courtship of Miles Standish" the most sumptuous and beautiful book of the year. The result is a veritable creation of loveliness, conceived by the best talent of the country and carried through with consummate skill. To the minutest detail it is a work of art; a setting of exquisite charm for the nation's favorite poem of courtship; a fitting tribute to Longfellow and to all the men and women who, since the Puritan days, have felt the promptings of that passion:

"Old and yet ever new, and simple and beautiful always, Love immortal and young in the endless succession of lovers."

It is thought by many that this classic, containing so charming a picture of New York Colonial life nearly a century and a half ago should not be permitted to pass away. NOTES IN SEASON.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish on the 21st inst. an important book on "Central Asia and Tibet," by Sven Hedin, in which the author describes his discoveries and extraordinary experiences during his three years' stay in Central Asia. The work contains 400 illustrations from photographs, eight illustrations in color, 16 drawings by distinguished artists and four maps.

DANIEL V. WIEN & CO., 359 Fifth Avenue, New York, has recently issued an interesting book entitled "Wanted—a Wife," by an anonymous writer who styles himself "A. Bachelor." The book will be found interesting reading by men and women who may be curious to learn what this particular bachelor expects the woman to be whom he desires to have for a wife. Two editions of the book have already been sold.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO. will bring out, the last of the month, a new book of popular science, by Ray Stannard Baker, entitled "The Boys' Second Book of Invention." Mr. Baker's book is thoroughly up to date. The opening chapter is on radium, and there are about eleven others dealing with wireless telegraphy, the flying machine, the solar motor, the electric furnace, etc., in short all those startling inventions or discoveries of the last decade which might most justly be considered epoch-making.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready "The Book of Months," by E. F. Benson, which relates the adventures and experiences of a London man-about-town, each more or less appropriate to the month designated; "Mother and Father," by Roy Rolfe Gilson, with illustrations by Alice Barber Stephens, a charming book for any man or woman who loves children; "The Making of a Journalist," by Julian Ralph, which is largely the author's own account of his adventures as an active journalist; "The Ambassadors," by Henry James, a story of Americans abroad; also, "Our Lady's Inn," by J. Storer Clouston, a story full of amusing predicaments.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. will publish on the 21st inst. "The Singing Leaves," by Josephine Preston Peabody, a collection of some fourscore poems, two of which are made up of songs of young people; "The Memoirs of Rufus Putnam," the founder of Marietta, Ohio, edited by Rowena W. Buell, with maps and illustrations; "New Bedford of the Past," by Daniel Ricketson, edited by Anna and Walton Ricketson, an interesting account of an interesting New England town one hundred years ago; a holiday edition of Daniel Munro Wilson's account of the famous old families of Quincy, Mass., entitled "Where American Independence Began;" new issues, in flexible leather binding, of Hawthorne's "The Marble Faun," "Howells's "Their Wedding Journey," and Blanche Willis Howard's "One Summer;" "The History of Oliver and Arthur," a mediæval romance of exceptional historical and bibliographical interest, originally written in Latin, translated into French in 1511, and into German by Wilhelm Liely in 1521, and now translated into English by William Leighton and Eliza Barrett, published in a Riverside Press edition, limited to 300 copies; also, a Riverside Press edition of Mrs. Elizabeth Robins Pennell's "My Cookery Books," a valuable bibliography showing the range and scope of the subject.

While desolate, father and son meet Katharine Frensham, a woman of thirty-six, who brings them cheer and warms their repressed English natures. Much of the story plays in Norway and Sweden where Katharine Frensham goes with botanical specimens for scientists. Telepathy plays an important part in the plot. Many songs and music of Scandinavia are given in the text.

In the later pioneer period, beginning about 1800, the waterways became the great highways of immigration. The history of the part played by rivers in the expansive movement has been slighted; the life and times of the barge and keel-boatmen are no better known than are the old coaching days which have so far passed from popular knowledge. Even the little rivers of the West have played a part in our national economic and social development which has never been formally acknowledged. This volume emphasizes the military and social movements which have made many of our rivers historic.

According to the editor's Preface "four subjects have been presented in this volume; first the editor gives in his biographical sketch a new statement of facts in regard to Poe's life, which it is hoped will constitute a more pleasing picture than is given in the older and partly erroneous biographies. The new version of his life is founded on facts unearthed by J. H. Ingraham and Professors Woodberry and Harrison. The poems included are those which the editor believes Poe would have liked preserved. The next effort has been to gather from his ephemeral reviews those detached portions which contain his analysis of literary processes."

"In the present collection," says the editor in his Preface, "we have included (with a very few exceptions, one of them 'Hans Pfaal') all the stories which are worth preservation, and indeed some which have been inserted chiefly to round out the variety of which Poe himself made such a point. To emphasize this variety the tales have been grouped under appropriate sub-titles, and each group provided with an introductory study. The text used is what may be called a restoration of Poe's manuscript with such revisions as it is believed Poe would have made had he been living to-day."

Prepared as a general introduction to the early Scottish literature, considered as a continuation of the old Northumbrian. The romance of "Rauf Coilyear" is especially suited to this purpose, being written in the purest Scottish of the fifteen century, avoiding pedantries and Latinisms on the one side, and vulgarisms on the other. It holds an intermediate place between the chivalry-romance and the humorous folk-tale. The introduction comprises a concise account of the Scottish poets from Barbour to the Reformation, a brief study of the Scottish language of the literary period, and an estimate of the poem itself.

He gives his reasons for taking this method to find his "twin soul," and then in a half dozen chapters discourses on various things pertinent to the subject; as, the equality of woman with man and her emancipation; woman generally, her moral nature, etc.; describes himself, his appearance, worldly possessions, etc., the intellectual and moral qualities he expects in a wife, etc. Those who aspire to be his "twin soul" are asked to communicate with him through his publishers up to Oct. 1, 1904.

Watson, J: B. Animal education: an experimental study on the psychical development of the white rat, correllated with the growth of its nervous system. Chic., University of Chicago Press, 1903. 2-122 p. O. cl., *$1.25 net.

A contribution to our knowledge of the mental life of animals. The work makes a study of the growth of the mental life of the white rat, the growth of its central nervous system and the correlation between the increasing complexity of its mental life and the increasing complexity of its nervous system. With these problems in mind, exhaustive experiments were undertaken whose results determined the age of psychical maturity, and also the relative ease of young and old in solving problems of activity and muscular control.

Webster, Dan. Daniel Webster for young Americans; with an introd. and notes by C: F. Richardson; and an Essay on Webster as a master of English style, by Edwin P. Whipple. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1903. [O.] c. 101+351 p. il. por. O. cl., $1.50.

Comprising the greatest speeches of "The defender of the Constitution"; selected and arranged for the youth of the United States, to which are added the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, and Washington's farewell address.

Wharton, Edith. Sanctuary; with il. by Walter Appleton Clark. N. Y., Scribner, 1903. [O.] c. 5+184 p. O. cl., †$1.50.

A novel which deals with a question of heredity, and which also attempts by force of the action of two of the characters to solve a psychological problem. Kate Orme, who has very high ideals, is disillusionized shortly after her betrothal by a confession of her lover. For reasons explained in the story she keeps her troth. After the death of her husband, and her son has become a man, the woman of ideals, sees him in a position similar to the one which confronted his father. The issues are interesting.

Whibley, C: William Makepeace Thackeray. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1903. [O.]5+253 p. D. (Modern English writers.) cl., $1 net.

Thackeray forbid that a personal biography of him should be written. The author has judiciously used the prefaces to her father's works made by Mrs. Ritchie for his biographical facts. The value of the book is that it passes under review every work of Thackeray's with the exception of his poems and gives them a reasonable balance of space and attention. The writer shows a little timidity in assigning to Thackeray his final place in English literature. He thinks that his was a dual nature and that in it were strangely blended cynicism and sentimentality.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

NOVEMBER 14, 1903.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

APPROACHING A BUYER.*

So much depends upon a first impression, whether in approaching a customer as an entire stranger, or for the first time after a longer or shorter absence, that, unless the traveller is correct in his approach, and perfectly at ease, all his subsequent efforts may be rendered void in the one case, or, in the other, he may only with difficulty be able to come into touch again with an old acquaintance. The subject is therefore well worth studying closely.

Many men who are new to the business imagine they must adopt methods suitable to each customer. This were desirable enough if it were possible of accomplishment; but it is not possible for the simple reason that to follow such a course successfully would require histrionic qualifications of a higher order than the average man possesses. The safer course to follow is to be natural. Assuming, of course, that the candidate for a position on the road is a gentleman, either by birth or training, that his deportment is dignified and quiet, and that he is able to talk well, he may depend upon making the best impression on his customer by acting in a natural manner. A cold and reserved nature may possibly be obliged to thaw out a little, and a boisterous, impetuous one may find it necessary to repress itself; but otherwise neither temperament need do violence to itself. A man's deportment or his address, inasmuch as it be original with himself, will thus become a special mark by which he will be known and distinguished from his fellow men. The more favorable he can make that mark, the more successful he will be, of course. Every traveller frequently meets men who require special handling, but the deviation in treatment should always be along the lines of his personal nature.

The unapproachable man very often is only a bugaboo; but if there should ever be found a man intrenched in the position of buyer whom no ingenuity, tact, or ability can draw out, or upon whom the most specious arguments and most irreproachable address can make no impression, who, in short, has no opening in his armor through which a vulnerable spot may be touched, the only treatment to give such an one is—a wide berth. But though we have now and then heard of such, we have always received reports of their absolute unapproachableness with mental reservation. There are no doubt surly, disagreeable curmudgeons in high places who delight in torturing those who they know cannot afford to retaliate. But absolutely and completely unapproachable buyers are figments of the brain—myths—impossible. There is no one in business whom it is impossible to approach, or whose confidence, even, it is impossible to gain, provided one steadily studies his idiosyncrasies and perseveres in the effort to get at him.

One of the most difficult things a young traveller must learn is to manage his temper, in fact to have it under perfect control under all circumstances. Every man who bears responsibilities is at times tried beyond his measure of strength, and must let off steam somehow. A mean soul in such straits will kick his dog, or quarrel with his subordinates; another will fill the air with profanity; and still another will bark at those who wish to do him a favor. A traveller who is unfortunate enough to intrude himself upon a buyer under any of these circumstances will find himself in a painful position, and if he is unable to preserve his equanimity will perhaps close a door upon himself for a long time. "A soft answer turneth away wrath," in most cases; if the proverb for once should fail in its efficacy, it would be better for the traveller to take his departure with all respect and civility, preserving an unruffled demeanor to the end. However much he may be tried, the man on the road cannot afford to quarrel with his bread and butter by resenting unfriendly treatment. In this connection it might be well to remember the saw attributed to Benjamin Franklin, "A gentleman will not, and another cannot insult me."

Whether the traveller succeeds in doing business or not, it is of the utmost importance that he leaves behind him a good and lasting impression, so that, at his subsequent visits, he may find a man at least disposed to give him a hearing. It is not likely that a traveller will succeed in interesting a buyer the first time, or that, for that matter, he will succeed in selling him a bill of goods at the end of a half dozen calls. Yet it will be fatal if the traveller shows his disappointment in a way that may give offence. There are many reasons why a man will not buy, and any of these or no reason at all must satisfy the traveller. But let him persevere and come up the next time as smiling as before, and the chances are that the buyer in time will become interested enough in his caller to at last take an interest in what he has to offer.

BOOKS PRINTED ELSEWHERE FROM PLATES MADE IN THIS COUNTRY MAY BE IMPORTED.

THE United States Treasury Department has rendered a decision regarding the copyright and importation into this country of books printed in a foreign country from type set in the United States or from plates made therefrom. The decision was made on the application of Edward Schuberth & Co., music dealers, of New York City.

The decision states that, if the statutory requirements relating to the procurement of the copyright are complied with and the books are printed from type set within the limits of the United States, or from plates made therefrom, the books are not liable to the prohibitive provisions of section 4956 of the Revised Statutes, which forbids the importation of copyrighted books not printed from type set within the limits of the United States or from plates made therefrom. The department explains its ruling by calling attention to the fact that the statutes do not provide that books shall be printed in the United States, provided the type or plates have been produced here, as ordered.

COPYRIGHT IN CHINA.

. . . "A FEW days ago," according to the London Academy, "a knot of literary men were congratulating one another that the conscience of the civilized world was waking up to the great and glorious truth that brains, (the sort of brains that produce poems, philosophies, and special articles rather than mammoth grocery stores,) are being recognized as the foundation of families and country estates, motor-cars, yachts, and the respect of hat-touching and courtesying tenants, and anticipating the millennium of letters when literary copyright should be a freehold rather than a short lease. Hovering on the verge of this knot of self-congratulating writers was a calm Chinaman, an observant young man, holding an official position, and keenly interested in the customs of a new world. One of the group turned to him and —seeking to draw him into the pleasing chorus of anticipated triumph—asked what was the Chinese law as to literary copyright. Then he dropped the bomb into the midst of the London literary côterie—very quietly, very politely, with no change of expression in his eyes, simply and with no outward hint of contempt—but it was a bomb. There is no law of copyright in China. For in China, as the almond-eyed young man proceeded to explain, literature is not regarded as a profession. No man writes because 'he has got to say something.' But now and again, when he has spent the best part of a lifetime in gathering experience—and salary and perquisites—it may occur to him that 'he has got something to say,' he thinks he has caught some facet of truth that should be presented to his fellow-men. So he sits down calmly and writes. If his views are interesting to his neighbors, he is pleased. If they are copied out and passed from hand to hand, he is delighted. If they are seized upon, pirated, and scattered to the furthest corners of the empire, he folds his hands and dies triumphant. He has said what was in him to say, and men have listened. That is his reward. He has told the truth, and men have taken it to their hearts. So he is satisfied. You may imagine that the literary men of the West shuddered at this shivering of their dreams of castles and families and motor-cars and pages in Debrett founded on the basis of cash for brains and truth at so many guineas per thousand words. You may imagine that the Yellow Peril surged close to their startled apprehensions. But the Peril was calm, polite, half-wondering. . . .

"Nevertheless, the Western world is not without its strivings after ideal that seems to be realized in China, and has a dim consciousness that the best is priceless and cannot be calculated in cash. There have always been men whose first object was to put forth the best that was in them, 'without money and without price,' as Isaiah said, and Isaiah, we may be sure, did not prophesy at so many guineas per thousand words. Indeed, the impulse to speak that which is given a man to say has always overcome the desire of making money, and it might perhaps be shown that the best literature has always sprung from the mental longing to communicate ideas rather than from the physical longing to get paid for them. Homer—not a single one of him asked more than supper and bed for his song or worried about copyright, which, if carefully calculated from the time of the first collected editions of Pisistratus, would suffice to support several dukedoms. There is no record that Virgil had to thank the world—and Augustus—for more than a country house in which he could sit down and think and write. Do you suppose that Milton cared two pennies whether he received five pounds or five hundred pounds for 'Paradise Lost,' over which the literary man of today sheds tears for the money lost by the writer? In our own day Huxley asked for no more than the bread and butter which would enable him to go on working; and Herbert Spencer's main reward is the privilege of speaking his mind. And deep in the minds of most writers who write for a living is the longing to say just one thing with the sole reward of a hearing. The literary men of London who stood startled at the calm assertion of the young Chinaman—men who triumphed that soon they would sell their ideas as a publican sells beer over the counter for cash down, and with a tactful addition of froth—even these men, we will warrant, had each something in his soul which he did not want to sell, but would tell, gladly, for nothing. Publishers of an enterprising turn of mind should take the hint, and extract from each writer the book he really wants to write. They would get it cheap."

THE BOOKSELLERS OF LONDON BRIDGE.

"WHEN London Bridge was covered with houses, and trade flourished as much on it as in any thoroughfare of the city," says Henry R. Plomer in a recent issue of The Library, "bibliophiles were attracted to it in as comparatively large a number as, in the nineteenth century, they frequented Holywell Street.

"From the earliest times of the printing press and bookbinder London Bridge numbered amongst its commercial inhabitants the bookseller, either in the singular or in the plural as circumstances ordered. Mainly, however, one man alone held sway, and he was succeeded in turn and turn by other traders in the same class of business.

"William Pickering was the first bookseller of London Bridge, his shop, seemingly, being at St. Magnus Corner at the north end of the bridge. It is not clear when he went there, but, according to his own showing, he was living on London Bridge in 1557, and he stayed there until 1571. Richard Ballard, Hugh Astley and John Tap succeeded him. Competition entered on the scene before the end of the sixteenth century. Thomas Gosson extending his business in Paternoster Row as far as the southern end of the bridge. Gosson died in 1600, and was succeeded by his son, who continued the business until 1641. John Spencer had a shop on the bridge in 1624, and according to the imprint of Stephen Pemell of 'An Essay on Drapery,' printed in 1635, the book was directed 'to be sold at his shop upon London Bridge neere the gate.' The shops during the Civil War were closed, but in 1659 we hear of them again. At that time Charles Tyus is found at the sign of the 'Three Bibles' on the middle of London Bridge. Then Charles Passinger carried on his bookselling at the Seven Stars in the 'New Buildings,' which had been erected in the place of those destroyed in the great fire in 1666. This Charles Passinger was a member of the Stationers' Company, to whom he left 40 s. to be divided among the poor. He was a friend, in a small way, of the Guildford 'public' library, seeing that he left to it 'one booke of the value of forty shilling.'

"Between 1660 and 1750 the booksellers' signs increased largely on the bridge. Amongst them were: The Red Lion, The Golden Bible, the Hand and Bible, the Sun and Bible, the Black Boy, the Looking Glass and Bible, etc. The lack of originality in this sign nomenclature is very obvious. The booksellers had been stationed on the bridge for a long time, and it was well into the eighteenth century before, in the person of one of their number, they were honored as a body.

"In 1750 James Hodges, of the Looking Glass, was elected the deputy for the ward of Bridge Without. Afterwards he became town clerk, and in 1758 he was knighted by George II. In that year, strangely enough for the purpose of this article, the demolition of London Bridge was begun, and bookselling with many other trades had to seek 'fresh fields and pastures new.'"

A MODERN BOOK FIRE.

ABOUT a hundred thousand copies of popular songs were destroyed in a bonfire in a lot in Baltimore, Md., on November 5, because the Baltimore publishers insisted upon printing the songs and selling them, notwithstanding that a copyright had been secured by Howley, Haviland & Dresser, of New York. This firm filed a suit in the United States Court, charging infringement of copyright, and Judge Morris granted an injunction against the printing of the songs, and also signed an order of seizure.

The marshal and his deputies took possession of twenty-three hundred copies of the songs and turned them over to representatives of the New York publishers. Other Batimore printers voluntarily contributed to the collection until a wagonload of songs was secured and burned. The case is now settled.

OBITUARY NOTES.

GUSTAV VON MOSER, the German dramatist, died last week at his home in Görlitz, Silesia. He was born in Spandau, Prussia, November 5, 1825, and wrote more than a hundred plays. His "Bibliothekar" was rendered here in an English version as "The Private Secretary." "The Big Bonanza," "Lemons" and "The Passing Regiment" were adaptations of his plays.

JAMES O'NEIL, proprietor of the Washington Book Store, a well-known dealer in second-hand books, died in Washington, D. C., on November 6. Mr. O'Neil was born in Washington, in 1855. He was apprenticed in the book business to A. K. Williams, with whom he remained thirty years. In 1896 he went into business on his own acount at 509 Seventh Street.

WATSON GILL, who for forty years was connected with the American Publishing Company, of Hartford, Conn., died at Syracuse on November 8. He was born February 14, 1837, in North Stoughton, Mass., and at the age of twenty-three began the study of law. He became principal of the Webster High School and a few years later started in the book business, which he continued up to the time of his illness.

General Edward McCrady, the historian of South Carolina, died at Charleston, S. C., his native city, November 2, aged seventy-one. Of late General McCrady was engaged in an undertaking of considerable importance. It was none other than the preparation of a history of South Carolina, under the Lords Proprietors, under Royal Government and in the Revolutionary period. The history was in four volumes, covering the years from 1670 to 1783. The fourth volume, which was the second volume of the "History of South Carolina in the Revolution, 1780-1783," was received from the publishers less than a year ago, and this completed General McCrady's work on that line. The work was received with the highest commendation, and is used as a text book in many colleges and other institutions of learning.

Colonel George B. McClellan, the newly-elected Mayor of New York City, has written a book entitled "The Oligarchy of Venice," which is to be published next spring by Houghton, Mifflin & Co.

The London Athenæum in its issue for October 31 says "we are able to state authoritatively that, in spite of rumors to the contrary, no biography of Whistler has at present been authorized by his legal representatives."

William Roscoe Thayer has undertaken, at the request of Mr. Fiske's family, to edit the letters, journals and memorials of the late John Fiske; and he will be greatly obliged to any of Mr. Fiske's correspondents who will send his letters for inspection. Address No. 8 Berkeley Street, Cambridge, Mass.

William Butler Yeats, the Irish poet and dramatist, and president of the National Irish Theatre Society, arrived in New York City on the 11th inst. on the Oceanic. He expects to remain in this country two months, during which time he will deliver lectures before Yale, Harvard, the University of Pennsylvania, the College of the City of New York, and other educational institutions.

The family of the late Elizabeth Cady Stanton are preparing for the press a collection of her letters. Persons having any would confer a favor by sending them, in America, to Mrs. Stanton-Blatch, No. 612 East Buffalo Street, Ithaca, N. Y., and in Europe to Theodore Stanton, No. 9 Avenue du Trocadéro, Paris. The letters will be copied and carefully returned to their owners.

The Rev. Dr. William Elliot Griffis, to devote his entire time to historical and literary production, has retired from the active pastorate, and offers to his friends and former parishioners in New York, Boston, Schenectady and Ithaca a souvenir volume which will contain memorials in word and picture of the churches in which Dr. Griffis has been active for twenty-five years or more. The book will be ready in December and will cost $1. It can only be had from the author, whose present address is Ithaca, N. Y.

Mrs. Coulson Kernahan has completed a book of fairy stories for children which Mr. John Long is to publish. Mrs. Kernahan is now working hard at a new novel which is to be ready by Christmas. Mr. Kernahan has written and will shortly publish a new work on line similar to "God and the Ant" and "The Child, the Wise Man and the Devil." This book, (for which no title has yet been definitely selected,) will deal throughout with the subject of immortality. Mr. Kernahan has also written a new detective novel, which, however, by reason of arrangements which have been entered into for its serial publication in various newspapers, cannot appear in book form for at least eighteen months.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Cambridge University Press will issue January 1, 1904, the first number of a new Journal of Psychology, edited by Professor James Ward and Dr. Rivers.

The Dial in its issues for December 1 and 16, will devote special attention to the holiday publications of 1903. Both numbers will be of practical interest to Christmas bookbuyers, being especially planned to serve as a guide in making holiday purchases.

Doubleday, Page & Co., the publishers of Country Life in America, have completed a contract with A. Radclyffe Dugmore, the artist-naturalist and sportsman, whose photographs of outdoor life have been appearing exclusively in Country Life in America and The World's Work, to continue with his entire services in the interests of these magazines. Mr. Dugmore has made two trips to Newfoundland to secure photographs and first-hand material for a series of articles on fishing and hunting and nature, to appear in Country Life in America.

The Printing Art, published by the University Press, Cambridge, Mass., for November has an interesting exhibit of representative book pages of this season's holiday volumes. The diversity of text, illustration, and decoration constitutes an interesting and instructive view of the most advanced styles. The leading article of this issue is by Dr. Richard Garnett on "The First Bookbinder," and it is illustrated with examples of the first-known bookbindings. In an article on "Better Books for 'The Trade,'" A. F. Mackay describes some of the problems in bookmaking and the tendencies toward fine typography in trade editions. This article is supplemented with examples of title-pages, headings, and other details of format. The whole number is rich in models and suggestions for the publisher, printer and booklover.

Mr. Ernest Thompson Seton will begin a series of stories treating of woodcraft for young people in the December number of the Holiday Magazine, the new monthly for girls and boys. Children the country over will be fascinated with the great nature-study plan which takes them out of doors to the very heart of nature, and teaches them besides how to be "good Indians." Mr. Seton's great plan is for children to form themselves into bands of "Woodcraft Indians," to study life as the Indian knows it, to live simply, to engage in healthful sport, to obey the council, and to enjoy nature as man was meant to do. There are already established throughout the United States, in city and country, over fifty bands of these "Woodcrafters," whose motto is "The Best Things of the Best Indians." Two large recent camps on Mr. Seton's own estate proved that the plan was a success among city boys. Camps of girls will be formed next spring for summer outings. The Holiday Magazine, which fits the in-betweens from four to fourteen, is the official organ of the whole nation of Woodcraft Indians, besides containing many stories and "prizes and surprises" for everybody.

ARTISTIC NOVELTIES FOR BOOKSELLERS.

Booksellers who may be at their wit's ends at this time of the year for an attractive novelty of a bookish sort for some of their choice customers may be pleased to know that the art department of the National Lead Company, of 100 William Street, New York, have prepared half dozen or more charming specialties that appeal directly to such customers. First among these are "The Two Hercules Book Rests," designed by Henri Crenier. The rests, while of a heavy metal, are artistic in every detail, each part representing a half closed volume held open by the combined efforts of two infant Hercules. Each rest, while not cumbersome, is sufficiently heavy to support books without the objectionable connecting rods or slides of the conventional book rack. These book rests are not only useful but form a very attractive ornament to the library table, the desk or the top of a bookcase. Other attractive writing table or desk ornaments are their inkstands and inkwells. Among these is a Bear Inkstand, designed by Roland Hinton Perry, showing a beautifully modelled grizzly bear standing on a rocky eminence. The top of one of the rocks removes and discloses an inkwell. A spring gushes forth at the bear's feet and the tray represents a pool of water. Their metal candlesticks, card trays and paper weights are also works of art worthy of a place in the cabinet of the collector, the casts being after patterns designed by Charles H. Barr, Alberta Hall and Roland Hinton Perry, all sculptors of reputation. These articles are made of a composition of four metals and are finished in antique verde. Though the articles are of an unusually high order of merit, the retail prices as a rule do not range above five dollars for any one piece.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

The Literary Collector Press, 1135 Broadway, New York, will publish serially, three times a year, in January, April and July, under the title of "Books at Auction," a price record of books, prints, autographs, playbills and book-plates sold at auction in this country. The record will be compiled by Frederick C. Bursch, editor of The Literary Collector.

Lemcke & Buechner, 812 Broadway, New York, have added a third part to their very useful "Catalogue Raisonné of World Literature," covering Spanish literature. The list, which is edited by Ernest Gustav Lemcke, is a reliable guide for selecting the Spanish library of a man of culture, with information as to the translations into English, periodicals, etc. (28 p. 8°.) They have also just published an additional list of the classics and belles-lettres of French literature, edited by Ernest Lemcke and E. G. Lemcke. (16 p. 8°.)

A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago, have issued twenty-five copies, for private distribution, of Victor Hugo Paltsits' "Bibliography of the Works of Father Louis Hennepin," which appears in Hennepin's "New Discovery," edited by Reuben Gold Thwaites. The works of Father Hennepin have proved a stumbling block to many bibliographers in the past, and their defeats no doubt materially aided Mr. Paltsits in achieving a victory in the present compilation. (22 p. 16°.) They have also just ready their illustrated trade catalogue of books for the season of 1903-1904. The catalogue is arranged by subjects under 26 headings, making in all 790 octavo pages, to which is added an index of 173 pages. (paper., 50 cents.)

The trustees of the Columbia University Library have arranged an exhibition of works on bookbinding, practical and historical, and examples of bookbindings of the 16th to the 19th centuries, from the collection of Samuel Putnam Avery, to be open to the public every day during the present month and December, from one until five in the afternoon. A catalogue has been prepared for this exhibition by Charles Alexander Nelson, which will be found quite helpful to the visitor. Though neither very extensive nor complete in any direction, the collection gives a good idea of the style of decoration used at prominent periods in the historic development of the bibliographic art, and the catalogue is a welcome and discreet cicerone. (12+136 p. 16°.)

Doubleday, Page & Co. have just published a new complete catalogue of their publications. The introduction tells all about their new building that is under course of construction near Union Square, and which is built solely for the use of all of the departments of their rapidly increasing business. Other prefatory remarks refer to the making and sale of books with some interesting information. Of fourteen volumes of some of Mr. Kipling's most important books published by Doubleday, Page & Co. more than half a million copies have been sold. The sale of the popular "Little Masterpieces" has reached 1,151,984 volumes, while the New Nature Library, more expensive books with colored plates, has reached a sale, only begun, the publishers believe, of 200,000 copies. They also believe the success of the late Frank Norris's books is just beginning, though 200,000 copies of his works have been printed, including "The Pit," which is still a best-selling novel, and "A Deal in Wheat" and "Responsibilities of a Novelist," the posthumous volumes of stories and essays.

ELLIOT STOCK, London, has just issued volume seventeen of "Book Prices Current," recording the prices at which books have been sold at auction in England during the season of 1902-1903, with full titles and descriptions, the names of the purchasers, etc. The sales, most of which were held in London, as usual have been most carefully analyzed by J. H. Slater. The indexes have been improved chiefly by the more frequent addition of publication dates, which will enable those who have occasion to consult the volume to identify at a glance, without referring to perhaps numerous entries, every particular edition of the book in which they may be interested at the moment. The obvious improvement secured by the head-lines, first introduced in the volume for 1902, has been continued in this, and special care has been taken to make the compilation a judicious and selected record of all that is best and most interesting in the season's sales, rather than a dead letter report having no reference to anything but the auctioneer's catalogues and the prices obtained. LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A. WESSELS CO., New York, announce a detective story by Headon Hill, entitled "The Duke Decides."

HENRY STEVENS, SON & STILES, London, have just published "A Critical Study of the Various Dates Assigned to the Birth of Christopher Columbus," a monograph by Henry Vignaud.

THE PRINCESS RADZIWILL'S memoirs will be published as soon as negotiations for the simultaneous publication of the book in France, Germany and the United States are completed. The Princess Radziwill's reminiscences of Cecil Rhodes are expected to be piquant.

EDWARD W. TRAVIS has resigned his position with Almy, Bigelow & Washburn, at Salem, Mass., and has taken a position as buyer of the book and stationery department of Schunemann & Evans, of St. Paul, Minn. Mr. Travis is a graduate of Leggat's and went to Salem about seven years ago.

AT a meeting of the Board of Managers of the American Publishers' Association the resignation of the business manager, Mr. E. H. Loveless, was received and accepted. Mr. F. C. J. Tessaro, the very efficient assistant of Messrs. Emory and Loveless, was elected manager in place of Mr. Loveless.

E. P. DUTTON & CO. are about to publish a book on "Canada in the Twentieth Century," by A. O. Bradley, author of "The Fight with France for North America." The author, who is thoroughly familiar with the country, presents in fresh and readable form a general idea of the Dominion and its varied forms of life and industries.

HERBERT B. TURNER & CO. have made arrangements with Ernest L. Briggs, of the Fortune Press, to take over the entire book rights of "A Rose o' Plymouth Town," a romantic comedy in four acts, by Beulah Dix and Evelyn Greenleaf Sutherland, the leading part of which was played last season with success by Miss Minnie Duprée. The book is now ready for delivery.

THE ISAAC GOLDMANN COMPANY, 251 William Street, New York, publish this week a cheerful and engaging story of life under canvas, entitled "On the Road with a Circus," by W. C. Thompson. The material for the book was gathered during a season's wandering with one of the "big shows," and the characters described are true and natural. It is designed as a graphic picture of the little understood circus folk.

HENRY HOLT & CO. have taken over Professor George F. Atkinson's work on "Mushrooms," of which they will bring out a new edition within a fortnight. This book covers both edible and poisonous mushrooms, and has additional papers on the cooking of the former by Mrs. S. T. Rorer, and on the chemistry and toxicology of mushrooms by J. F. Clark. There will be 230 illustrations from photographs and colored plates.

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING COMPANY, Akron, O., have just ready in book form "Dickon-Bend-the-Bow," by Everett McNeil, which enjoyed great popularity during its serial run in the "Children's Page" of the New York Herald. They have also just ready a capital book for boys, entitled "Four Boys on the Mississippi," by Frank E. Kellogg, who is on the road to a place in the front rank of writers for young people.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish at once "Literary New York: Its Landmarks and Associations," by Charles Hemstreet, chapters of which already appeared in The Critic; "Parliamentary England—the Evolution of the Cabinet System," by Edward Jenks, a new volume in the Story of the Nations series; also, "Infection and Immunity, or, the Causes and Prevention of Infectious Diseases," by Dr. George M. Sternberg, Surgeon-General U. S. A.

MADAN GOPAL & Co., at Lahore, India, advertise elsewhere that they should be pleased to make arrangements with publishers of American books and magazines to handle these in their country. They write us that India is becoming steadily a better market for books and magazines in the English language, and they are confident that American publishers will find the Punjab a profitable field. Of course, the publications offered must not conflict with the British copyright laws or the proprietary rights of British publishers.

THE MOODY PUBLISHING COMPANY, 35 Nassau Street, New York, are publishing "The Art of Living Long," a famous book by Louis Cornaro, of Venice, who was born in 1464 and died in 1566. The work has been translated and edited by William F. Butler, of Milwaukee. Besides Cornaro's work, the volume contains essays by Joseph Addison, Lord Bacon and Sir William Temple, and a portrait of Cornaro, reproduced from the painting by Tintoretto now in the Pitti Palace. The first edition has been exhausted, and a second is now being made ready.

CONSIDERABLE interest, says the Berlin correspondent of the London Times, has been excited by the publication on October 23 of a book by Ludwig Max Goldberger called "The Country of Unlimited Possibilities." It is the result of eight months' travel in the Eastern, Western and Southern United States in the author's capacity as a member of the economic committee for the preparation of commercial treaties. Mr. Goldberger in dealing with the "American peril" finds that the future of American enterprise is somewhat compromised by the insecurity of the financial foundations of industrial activity, as exemplified by excessive capitalization, the degeneration of trusts, and the development of labor organizations. Against these Mr. Goldberger sets the sobriety of German methods and the solid foundations on which German industry and commerce are reared.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready "Spencer Kellogg Brown: His Life in Kansas and His Death as a Spy, 1842-1863," by George Gardner Smith. The book tells the story of the short life of Brown, who, though no relative of John Brown, fought under him in Kansas. When the war broke out between the States Spencer Brown was engaged in the secret service of the Federal army. He was captured by the Confederates and after living in prison for thirteen months, was hanged as a spy in 1863. The chief feature of the book is the journal of the boy, which tells his own story. They have also just ready "Butternut Jones," a story of the wild life on Texan prairies and Western plains, by Tilden Tilford. They will publish next spring the impressions of Sir Philip Burne-Jones gained by him during his year's sojourn in the United States, to which he gives the title of "Dollars and Democracy."

THOMAS WHITTAKER, New York, has just published a work on Christian unity, entitled "The American Church," by the Rev. Dr. J. J. Lanier, of Milledgeville, Ga. Dr. Lanier, like Canon Henson, seeks some approximate solution to the anomalous situation of a divided Christendom, and his thesis is worthy of serious study. Mr. Whittaker has nearly ready "Theism Under Natural Law, as Related to Old Testament Criticism, and the Theodicy of Lux Mundi," by the Rev. Edward Softley; "Problems of Living," a volume of new essays by J. Brierly, whose previous volumes, "Studies of the Soul" and "Ourselves and the Universe," have each had the unusual distinction of reaching a sixth edition within a year of publication; also "An Anatomical Model of the Female Body," consisting of five colored superimposed detail plates, with an exhaustive reference index, which forms one of his series of popular anatomical models.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have ready for delivery "American Myths and Legends," which is a further contribution to the series of popular collections of those legends, some familiar and some scarcely known at all, for whose preservation Charles M. Skinner is already known in "Myths and Legends of Our Own Land" and "Myths and Legends Beyond Our Borders." A new edition of John Luther Long's popular "Miss Cherry Blossom of Tokyo" is announced by the Lippincotts in response to a renewed demand created by Mr. Long's triumph in collaboration with Mr. Belasco in the play "The Darling of the Gods." The book has ornamental covers in color, and the printing is in accord with the daintiness and sentiment of Mr. Long's charming romance of Japanese life. They also announce the early appearance of a volume dealing with the Carlyle country, illustrated with a large number of reproductions from new photographs and presented in form and bindings appropriate for Christmas giving.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. publish to-day Dr. Lyman Abbott's interpretation of the life and character of Henry Ward Beecher; "The Nature of Goodness," by George H. Palmer, who in this volume grapples with the moral problems which he outlined in his former book, "The Field of Ethics;" "The Beauty of Wisdom," daily readings compiled from the Bible, Plato, Confucius and other wisdom literature, by the Rev. James De Normandie, pastor of the First Church in Roxbury; a new edition of "Castilian Days," by John Hay, with illustrations by Joseph Pennell; "Comments of John Ruskin on the Divina Commedia," compiled by George P. Huntington, with an introduction by Charles Eliot Norton; "Elizabeth of England," by Professor Nathaniel S. Shaler, a dramatic romance consisting of five plays in which are reflected the large mind and daring spirit of the days of Hawkins, Raleigh and Drake; "A History of the United States for Secondary Schools," by J. N. Larned, with maps; also, the third part of the first volume of "Trees and Shrubs," edited by Professor Charles S. Sargent.

THE "Breviarium Grimani," which will be brought out in a careful reproduction, edited by Dr. S. G. De Vries, of the University Library of Leyden, is one of the most beautiful manuscripts in existence, that has been zealously guarded for over one hundred years in the Library of St. Marks, in Venice. Its many miniatures and decorations are ascribed to the Dutch masters Jan Memling, Gerart van den Meire, Levien van Antwerpen and Gerart von Gent. It seems certain that the work was undertaken for Pope Sixtus IV., and that the most noted painters of miniatures of that period were engaged upon it from about 1478 to 1489. In 1489 one of the collaborators, the Sicilian Messer Antonio, sold the work to Cardinal Grimani, from whom the manuscript takes its name. In 1789 the work was removed from the Tesoro of the Basilica to the Library of San Marco. For years this manuscript has been practically inaccessible, and its publication therefore will be a great boon to the artist and antiquary. The work will be in twelve parts and will be completed in 1908. It will contain 300 colored plates and 1268 plates in photo-heliogravure printed in tints. Dr. Sal. Morpurgo will furnish an introduction. Martinus Nijhoff has secured the sole agency for the United States and Canada.

DANA ESTES & Co. have just published the second edition of Walton's interesting book, "A Hermit's Wild Friends." The book is autobiographical and records the author's experiences in regaining his health. Eighteen years ago Mr. Walton was a victim of aggravated dyspepsia and catarrh and threatened with consumption. At the advice of his friends he abandoned his sedentary life and pitched a tent on Bond Hill, near Gloucester, Mass. Mr. Walton recovered his health in a surprisingly short time, and since then has become a confirmed hermit. Estes & Co. have also just ready an interesting and instructive book for girls, entitled "Three Hundred Things a Bright Girl Can Do," by Lilla Elizabeth Kelley. This practical handbook covers almost everything which a clever girl could wish to know or do, and treats in detail of such subjects as bead work, sewing, embroidery, easy carpentry, carving, picture framing, pyrography, bent iron work, the making of paper flowers, coloring photographs, transparencies, china painting, clay modelling, swimming, rowing, skating, fencing, golf, taxidermy, the making of an aquarium, raising pheasants, chickens and bees, etc., practical household economy and the entertaining of guests. The chapters are arranged under convenient sub-headings, and there is a full index. The book is profusely illustrated.

The Merrylinks

By ALICE BROWN

Contemplate him carefully, and note the logic of his composition. By name he is Chimpanzebra, and in form he takes after two delectable scions of the menagerie—the Chimpanzee and the Zebra. Was ever beast more happily compounded?

Mr. Chimpanzebra is one out of a new zoölogical world conceived by Alice Brown, and pictured by Louise Clarke, which, as displayed in the book that these ladies bring forth, now consists of forty-eight members. An explanation or meditation in verse accompanies each animal depicted.

WANTED— A WIFE

By A. BACHELOR

In the midst of an epidemic of sensational advertising it becomes somewhat difficult to state the true origin of a book should its history—no matter how simple that may be—depart ever so little from the commonplace. It must be admitted that the origin of "Wanted—A Wife" does depart just a trifle from the ordinary. Not that the MS.—lacking the author's name—mysteriously reached the publishers in a red box or a blue box or a box of any other startling color. Not at all. The author—who, by the way, has nothing mysterious about him, but is on the contrary something of a personage in the world—came to the publishers quite frankly, his MS. tucked under his arm and a modest brown paper wrapped about it; perhaps, even, there was an equally modest bit of string to hold the paper in place. At any rate, the author presented himself and his MS. thus unassumingly before the publishers and said: I wish to marry; I can give my wife every comfort; I should do my utmost to add to her mere comfort, happiness as well. Now for a multitude of reasons I despair of finding among the women I know, a young person who shares my ideas. My ideas are in this MS.—which is nothing more or less than an extensive advertisement. Will you take it?

The publishers took the MS., and there is an end of the story.

Or, no, perhaps, after all, it is not the end. Embarrassing to their modesty as the confession may be, the publishers are obliged to admit that the first two editions of "Wanted—A Wife" were disposed of within five days after the appearance of the book.

ON THE ROAD WITH A CIRCUS

By W. C. THOMPSON

A HANDSOME volume, richly bound in cloth and colors, with full-page illustrations, depicting actual circus scenes and characters.

Appeals to the Juveniles
Best Adapted Book of the Season
For Gift and Holiday Sales

An eminently clean, wholesome, comprehensive, vivid story of daily circus life in all its varied phases and aspects. The secrets of the tented arena are told by one who has lived in the atmosphere of sawdust and naphtha, wandering with the circus under all vicissitudes and the close companion of the men, women and children he writes about. A peculiar, delightful, romantic fascination always invests the circus, and while this book is designed to appeal to every member of every household, its pages provide endless delight to boys. It is a SAFE BOOK to put into the hands of the younger generation.
